NEWS OF THE DAY.

M. Achille Fould, a French statesman and financier, died, aged sixty-seven, on the 7th inst.

A young American officer, Major Sidney DeKay, has been wounded in the Cretan service.

The London Times says Edward Thornton, now English Envoy at Rio Janeiro, will be made Minister to the United States.

Rev. Calvary M. Webster expired suddenly on Sunday, the 7th inst., while the Rock River Methodist Conference, in session at Dixon, Ills., was engaged in a love feast.

The Washington correspondent of the Cincinnati Enquirer, says in his dispatch of the 8th instant: "Major General Rawlins, chief of General Grant's staff, who has been on a tour of inspection and for his health, since early in the summer, may, it is confidently expected back here any day after the 15th. This is some weeks earlier than his return was looked for but a short time ago. The reasons for the change of plan are not known, but some persons think the political situation has something to do with the matter."

It is reported in Washington that the letter of Senator Howard, arguing that Senators who advise impeachment should not be disqualified to sit on the trial, will not be published for the present. This action is taken upon the advice of leading Radicals and Senators, who deprecate impeachment as prejudicial to our financial affairs and injurious to the political interests of the Republican party.

Gen. E. S. Parker has gone to North Carolina to make examinations of the Dismal Swamp Canal. There are two of these, designated as the old and new canals. The former is under the control of the general government; the latter belongs to the State and private parties. The old canal was broken in the war, and has not been used since. It is much better than the new canal, and North Carolina authorities and many citizens are very anxious to have the government put it in repair, and enlarge it so as to make a passage for ships. It is possible that, in certain contingencies, purchases might be found for it amongst capitalists interested in that section. The Treasury Department has made partial investigations on one or two occasions, and now a more complete examination will be made, under authority conferred on the Secretary of War by acts of Congress.

Saturday afternoon, the 30 inst., Mrs. Isaac Smith and two children, and Mrs. William Baxter, Jr., while driving in a buggy, near Chatham, Canada, were upset, and the whole party thrown into a ditch. Both children were killed and Mrs. Baxter fatally injured, and Mrs. Smith seriously.

Rumors which are constantly arising in regard to the designs of the Fenians cause much anxiety in England and Ireland. All the prisoners are doubly guarded by armed policemen, to prevent an attempt at rescue. Threatening indications lead the authorities to apprehend some disorder at Berwick, and proper precautions are being taken.

Judge E. F. Buckner, formerly of Louisville, but many years a resident of Mississippi, committed suicide at Brandenburg, Ky., on the 8th inst., by blowing his brains out with a double-barrel shot-gun, which he fired by attaching the trigger to a twig, having placed the muzzle against his head.

Tax derangement in our office consequent upon the fire of Tuesday night, necessitates the sending of the daily to our tri-weekly subscribers this morning.

The meagerness of our columns this morning must be excused on account of the broken-down condition of our composing force, who were greatly fatigued by their labors at the fire which occurred in the building on the night of Tuesday.

GOV. BROWNLOW AND HIS MESSAGE.

From what we have learned of the Governor's physical condition, we are indined to speak of him and the message delivered to the General Assembly yesterday, in his name, as two separate and distinct subjects. It is to us as if we were speaking of a dead man, and of his will. At this time we do not desire to speak of either harshly: for he is still sensible of existence, though the grave is upon before him and he trembles upon its brink, and his political sources and administrators still have possession of his person and effects. Therefore, to go into the solemn precincts of the death chamber, with complaints or criticism is not to our taste.

Gov. Brownlow, as a man, has virtues to which we have never been blind; like others he has faults which it is unfortunate he has never been able to correct. His will—not uniformly controlled by justice—has been always powerful and positive. It has impelled him to do many things hateful both to himself and to the public, over whom circumstances have given him an influence, beyond his power to exert for the general good. These very circumstances he was unable to mould and use as a statesman would have done. He has been constantly the victim of an internal contest between the principles of the good and the evil in human nature. If there had been no parties or offices, he would have remained a preacher, and in the church he would have had a party. We are not sure that it would not have been a party of the right sort. His nature requires ascendancy, and his ambition requires that he shall lead. In his last days his nature is unchanged. But his strength is exhausted, and his message, and the fact of making him United States Senator are but the reflection of the hopes of those who would avail themselves of the labors he has performed, and the reputation he has established.

We look upon the message, therefore, as a "dying declaration" of the Governor, taken in the interest of those in whose hands he has been thrown during its preparation, as a document unworthy, in many respects of Brownlow, and which he, in the vigor of health, would never have put forth. To be his, it would have been stronger, or better, or both. He would not have shielded himself behind an opinion of such a Legislature as the last, in violation of the constitution in the appointment of judges. He would not have excused himself for taking possession of seven railroads, because, after the lapse of two years, their accounts were found to be in a confused and unsatisfactory condition. Brownlow has too much sense to complain of the condition of accounts that have been in his hands for settlement for two years. Neither would he Governor have withdrawn his advocacy of aid to railroads, and recommended the building of an in definite number of neighborhood turnpikes wholly at the expense of the State. The message abounds in passages that Brownlow, in the vigor of health, would never have committed himself to. It is clear that the message was inspired by persons who look forward to an early change in the political capital, which Brownlow has accumulated; and as such we will wait and see whether it will take the course and inure to the benefit of those designed by them.

THE ELECTION NEWS.

The election returns from Pennsylvania, Ohio, Iowa, and Indiana indicate most gratifying results. At this writing, the probabilities are that the Democratic majority in Pennsylvania will not have been elected, while the gains upon the Radical strength in the latter have been very large. Nothing is risked in claiming a great victory, for it is certain State about 20,000. The Ohio result is broken. Democratic candidates may, in some instances, lack a few thousand votes of being elected; but the spirit and vim of the ordered inquiry has aroused a power to override the constitution, and wreak its own will will with this nation for some years past, has been stamped but A check, and such a check to the career of such a political faction as has been administered to Radicalism by the people of Maine, California, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, Iowa and Connecticut in the past six months, is irretrievable disaster. It is the beginning of the end of it. An organization sprung from the troubles of a civil war, and professing reckless insinuation as its creed, has no principle of tenable life. When it ceases to be a combination, it becomes a rout. This is the history, and will be the fate of what calls itself the Republican party

We earnestly believe that our dispatches of this morning will confirm the high anticipations which those of yesterday have raised; sincerely believing as we do that the downfall of this most mischievous party of power flourished in the Republic, will date a new and more auspicious era in our history.

The resolutions introduced in the Tennessee Legislature yesterday requesting our representatives in Congress to vote conceded that the only way to defeat Democratic by a small majority.

THE BEST IN THE CHEAPEST!—And if you want the best combined weekly ADVERTISING MEDIUM in the United States, send $4 for a year's subscription to the NEW-YORKER, which is in advance of all others in news, literature, and in every way, and superior in typography, illustrations, etc. The Rural Department is the best in all its departments, and has a far larger circulation than any other journal of the class in the world—best evidence of intrinsic merit and superiority. Both as a literary and an advertising medium, it stands at the head of its class. Advertising in it is ably edited, neatly printed, and profusely illustrated with original, scientific, and useful, more in tone, pure in sentiment and highly entertaining than any other. It circulates in every State and country, but is mainly devoted to the interior and welfare of the great agricultural population, among whom it has an immense circulation. Terms cash. Specimens free.

Two Hundred Dollars in Gold will be given on Saturday, 26th inst., to the person who sends us by mail, before 10 o'clock A. M., the largest club of (this October to January) or any preceding number of the NEW-YORKER, or as specimens, for only forty cents. Address
