
A CIRCUS RIDER'S DIVORCE SUIT.

Mrs. Edward Snow, formerly a bareback rider in Barnum & Bailey's circus under the name of Mlle. Annie Carroll, has begun suit for divorce against her husband, who in the same circus rode standing races and drove chariots.

Mrs. Snow is now living with her mother, a well-known equestrienne, in Westchester. Her husband, she alleges in her complaint, is now with Irwin Brothers' circus in the West, and Annie Gray, a performer in one of the Kiralfy spectacles, is with him.

Mrs. Snow charges that her husband used to get possession of her salary of $250 a week and squander it on other women. She is now, she says, dependent on her mother for support.
