

MAGINLEY'S BENEFIT.—The people need not refrain from giving Maginley a good horse this evening, because they fear he is unable to bear prosperity. He is large and strong and we verily believe fully able to stand any amount his friends may see fit to heap upon him. The members of Christy's Minstrels have tendered their services, and it needs but a corresponding show of generosity on the part of our citizens to make this complimentary testimonial a perfect success.—The troupe will "throw themselves" on the occasion, and Mr. Dickinson will also assist them upon the harp.
